

PINK LADY OF DUDDENHOE END

Pink Lady of Duddenhoe End
She's not one on whom to depend
She'll stay for a year
But then come back here
To look for another new friend.

A warning we ought to extend
The Pink Lady loves to pretend
She comes here in disguise
As a nice raffle prize
Poor return for the pound you spend!

She may claim that she follows the trend
But her behaviour we can't defend
She's footloose and free
She cheats youse and me
This old floozy of Duddenhoe End.

If you've won her tonight my friend
Our sympathy we both do send
You weren't very smart
To win this old tart
We hope it won't spoil your weekend.

She's driving us all round the bend
And we wonder how it will end
Maybe someone will drink her
Not too nice we would think – Ugh!
Pink Lady of Duddenhoe End.

Martin & Pauline Collins
September 2006